

Visit of Johannes Hahn

The University of Belgrade Faculty of Law had a pleasure of hosting Mr. Johannes Hahn, the Commissioner for European Neighborhood Policy and Enlargement Negotiations and Professor Tanja Mišćević, the Head of the Serbian negotiation team for accession to the EU, on 5 December 2016, who gave a lecture to students of Master in European Integration and the Forum for Diplomacy and International Relations on Serbia's European Integration and European Union's support to reforms in Serbia.

The lecture and debate that followed was also attended by his Excellency, ambassador Michael Davenport, Head of the European Union Delegation to the Republic of Serbia.

The esteemed guests were welcomed by the Dean Professor Sima Avramović and by Professor Dragica Vujadinović, the Head of the MEI, who moderated the whole event and actively participated in the debate.

The lecture and debate concentrated on the questions of when the opening of new chapters for Serbia can be expected, whether the Progress report is positive or not, whether the EU internal crisis impacts and to what extent the accession of Serbia to the EU, migrants' crisis and ways for its resolution, relations between EU and Turkey, costs and benefits of the accession to the EU, and in particular, comments on the Chapters 35, 24, 23.

Numerous students, both from the Faculty of Law and from the other faculties followed this event and many of them posed interesting questions and participated in the discussion.
